SOME CIVIC AFFAIRS

MORE WORK TO BE DONE ON DORAN STREET PIPE LINE—FIRE BONDS

Not long ago the Public Service department ordered 9200 feet of 20-inch cast iron pipe on behalf of the city. Advices received today say that part of this is now on its way. It will arrive very shortly and will immediately be taken to Doran street where it will be laid in continuation of the line already begun there.

This pumping line will run down Doran street to Central avenue, along Central to Sycamore, thence to San Fernando road and to the pumping plant. Already 4500 feet of pipe has been laid. That work was done in the spring and the present work will join on to it.

The city trustees are preparing to call for bids for a new pumping apparatus to be installed at the pumping plant. This will be an electric pump and will be used to force the water up the hill.

Recently the city installed a pumping apparatus on the ground of the Verdugo Road reservoir. This plant is now being used to pump water up hill to the Kalem company and to the Woodberry and other properties up the hill. It is working well.

The Board of Trustees has authorized the city attorney to begin proceedings with a view to calling an election for the purpose of floating bonds for the purchase of a pumping engine and other apparatus needed by the city fire department. There have been many representations made to the trustees on this point and as the fire department bonds were lost at last election by a very small majority it is believed that there will be no difficulty in carrying them this time. The date for the election has not yet been set.

MOTHERS' READING CIRCLE

The Mothers' Reading Circle met at the Pacific Avenue school Thursday afternoon. There was a good attendance. The feature of the meeting was the presence of Mrs. Ella W. Richardson, who returned this week from the East, where she has been visiting her friends and relatives during the past three months. Mrs. Richardson gave a most interesting talk on conditions in the East, as she saw them in New York, Massachusetts and other states. The circle then took up the study of Kate Douglas Wiggin's interesting book, "Children's Rights." The study was found so interesting that the two chapters were gone over. Those present were: Mrs. Ella Richardson, Mrs. S. C. Packer, Mrs. Begg, Mrs. Ayars, Mrs. Snell, Mrs. Hilbert, Mrs. Roach, Mrs. Minette Sherman, Mrs. R. A. Puffer, Mrs. Tatlow and Mrs. Robinson. Mrs. Nanno Woods was a visitor.

UNIQUE ENTERTAINMENT

The Intermediate Department of the First M. E. church were entertained in the social halls of the church with a "Wish Party" on last evening. The evening's entertainment was under the direction of the Superintendent, Mr. L. C. Leeds, who favored the young folks with one of his professional evenings, such as he renders elsewhere in the capacity of social secretary.

A wish box was at the door where each one deposited a written wish, which were used later in the evening as one of the games, and this wish together with a friend was the price of admission.

One game was woven into the other so that for over two hours the young folks were entertained in such a way that at the close Mr. L. C. Leeds received a chautauqua salute as evidence of their appreciation. Light refreshments were sandwiched in between the games.

This department has a social of some unique character once each month, during the summer on the fourth Thursday night and during the school months on the second Friday night, but this next entertainment on account of the superintendent being away on a short vacation will be given the fifth Friday night and is to be a "Hard Time Party."

KALEM COMPANY

Those who pass along Verdugo road these days will be struck by the busy scene on the Kalem grounds. The mechanics of the company are at work constructing a huge chute, which will represent an ore chute in a mining drama, which is shortly to be staged. When the chute has been constructed, a beautiful young woman will escape from the villian in the midst of the ore that is conveyed down the chute. This is likely to be as picturesque a scene as any staged on the Kalem grounds.

CONTROL OF FLOODS

CITY TRUSTEE WOODBERRY WRITES ABOUT THE NECESSITY OF ACTION

Running down from the Sierra Madre range of mountains, from the mouth of the Arroyo Seco canyon above Pasadena, to a junction with the Los Angeles river, a short distance north of the Broadway bridge, is a wide, deep gash in the surface of the earth cut out by the swift torrents from the mountain water shed during the rainy seasons of unnumbered years.

This water course is known as the Arroyo Seco and as in years of normal rainfall the stream occupies with its channel but a small portion of the bottom of the arroyo man has invaded it and contended for the right to construct his dwellings, his streets and his gardens. The highly ornamental grounds known as Busch's Gardens in Pasadena are largely within the confines of this territory and many beautiful homes may be found therein as one journeys along its course between the two cities of Pasadena and Los Angeles.

During years of torrential rainfall such as 1913-14 and 1915-16 these dwellers in this territory claimed by the mountain floods have been rudely awakened from their dreams of fancied security and in some cases have lost their all in the raging waters. During one storm some sixteen dwellings near Pasadena avenue bridge were undermined and dropped one by one into the swift current. At the present time one may see an abandoned house with one corner of the cement steps projecting into space, its next neighbor with half its yard gone and the one beyond where the waters were content to take only the street and sidewalk, and so on.

At two widely separated points work is now in progress to tame and hold the unbridled power of the mountain stream and rob it of its terrors. At the Devil's gate, so called, north and west of Pasadena, where the arroyo narrows to a mere gorge between precipitous cliffs, foundations are being prepared for a massive retaining wall or dam which is designed to hold a portion of the water in time of flood and equalize the flow, as the area over which the confined water may spread is approximately a mile long and a half mile wide. The scheme would appear to be practicable and of real value. Unfortunately very few of Southern California's rivers and mountain streams are susceptible of like treatment owing to lack of storage capacity should retarding dams be built. The other point on the Arroyo Seco where man elects to say to his enemy, the flood, "Thus far shalt thou go and no farther," is in the district bisected by Pasadena avenue bridge and is the place where the greatest destruction has occurred.

To one interested in the wonderful advance made in recent years in the art of accomplishing much in little time in the world of material things; in substituting brains and steel and the electric current for human muscle; in eliminating the drudgery and utilizing what was once waste material and converting it into an asset for the improvement and upbuilding of highways and towns, it is well worth while to view the work now going on and observe how all these things are accomplished and how like clockwork the whole undertaking goes on.

The problem at this point was not one of erosion but a filling in and cutting under on the sides; hence two things are being done, a wide and deep channel excavated and concrete walls built at the sides. All the machinery used is portable and moves down the arroyo as the work progresses. First is the excavating of some fifteen feet in depth by 100 to 150 feet in width of boulders, gravel and sand packed firmly together by the water. The excavating machinery stands on a large movable platform, the huge derrick arm swings in a radius which covers the whole channel and the loader suspended at the end would almost lead one to think it exercised an individual intelligence. It is somewhat in the shape of an old fashioned two-wheel cart body with a hood over the open end to insure full loading. Unlike the usual type of steam shovel it does not drop its load from the bottom and it does not scoop up through the bank to the surface. Poised over the spot to be excavated it drops flat on the bottom, noses forward into the bank, tilts upward and runs into the bank until full, stops and goes straight up with the 2800 lb. load, swings over to a portable bin and quickly slides its bur-

FORD THREATENED TO CLOSE HIS PLANT

AUTOMOBILE FACTORY OWNER TELLS WILSON HE WILL SHUT DOWN IN CASE OF RAILROAD STRIKE

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 2.—It is stated here that one of the most recent messages of importance received by President Wilson regarding the railroad strike was one from Henry Ford, the well-known manufacturer of the Ford auto. Ford declared that in the event of a strike on the part of the Railroad brotherhoods he would close down his plant at Detroit at once.

AUSTRIANS EVACUATE IMPORTANT TOWN

TEUTONS FALL BACK BEFORE RUSSO-ROUMANIAN ATTACK ABANDONING HERMANSTADT

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

BERLIN, Sept. 2.—In order to shorten their line and thus to be able to present a more effectual front to the Russo-Roumanian attack the Austrians have evacuated Hermanstadt, an important city of Transylvania. The Russians are making a rapid advance. All of the Tarlung valley has been occupied as well as the industrial center of Tetroseney. Other important points inside the Hungarian border have been seized. Along the Danube heavy fighting is going on and the Roumanians are getting ready to throw a large army across the river to attack the Teutonic forces in Northern Servia.

SENATE WILL PASS THE EIGHT-HOUR BILL

PRESIDENT WILSON LEARNS THAT IMPORTANT MEASURE WILL BE PUT THROUGH TONIGHT

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Sept. 2.—President Wilson, who is at his famous country house, Shadow Lawn, was informed today that the United States Senate will pass the Eight-hour law tonight by an overwhelming majority. By the passing of this measure it is believed that the threatened railroad strike will be averted. A number of prominent legislative people are at Shadow Lawn.

RAILROADS OF MIDDLE WEST PREPARING

ACTION OF CONGRESS ON EIGHT-HOUR LAW DOES NOT STOP RAILWAY MEASURES AGAINST STRIKE

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—Preparations for combating the strike should it come are being made by the railroads here. In some places barricades are being erected. Every effort is being made to get promises of assistance from men who have already done railroad work. It is going to be difficult to get engineers and firemen; but it is believed that the railroads could run a limited service and gradually build it up to something like its present strength. The railroad presidents are paying little attention to what Congress is doing, but are looking to their own defense.

GREECE ON VERGE OF REVOLUTION

ALLIED FLEET ANCHORS AT PIRAEUS WITH INTENTION OF SENDING STRONG GARRISON TO ATHENS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

LONDON, Sept. 2.—Conditions in Greece are critical in the extreme. No reliable word has come out regarding King Constantine, who is said to have fled to the Germans. Thirty Allied warships, accompanying transports of troops, anchored off the Piraeus, the port of Athens; some of them are lying in the historic bay of Salamis and also in the bay of Phaleron. The garrison at Saloniki refused to join the revolutionists, who immediately cut off the water and light supplies of the fort and forced them to surrender. Gen. Sarrail, the French commander, took possession of the garrison, rescuing the soldiers from the Revolutionists.

GERMANS REOCCUPY SOME LOST TRENCHES

TEUTONS AFTER SERIOUS LOSSES STRUGGLE INTO FEW HUNDRED FEET OF OUTLYING GROUND

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

PARIS, Sept. 2.—The German troops made a prolonged attack on the British advanced lines in the sector of Guinchy and Delville wood. Five separate attacks were made and the fifth was partially successful. The Germans were caught under the British curtain of fire and suffered severely. Preparations are being made to eject them from the ground they hold. The French also report that part of the assault was directed against their positions and that the Germans managed to hold on to a small portion of outlying trenches, in the direction of Estrees.

GLENDALE FOOTHILLS

RECORD OF MANY COMINGS AND GOINGS—PROGRESS AND IMPROVEMENTS

The vanguard of winter sojourners from the East has reached this section, and the demand for furnished houses of the better class cannot be filled.

The large Stanton furnished bungalow, 1119 N. Central avenue, was leased last week and the Sternberg furnished residence has been taken by a Denver family, the E. J. Ryans. A part of the family travelled by auto as far as the Mojave desert, where the machine broke down and was temporarily abandoned, and later towed in to the nearest town for extensive repairs.

Mr. Horne, associated with the Kalem Film Co., has taken a year's lease on the Bassett place, 1445 Valley View road.

James Conner is improving his 5-acre ranch facing south on Sixth street (which is now a fine paved boulevard) near Grand View road, by the construction of a two-story dwelling house, now nearing completion.

The large two-story Jameson residence, now progressing rapidly toward the finishing touches, is an important acquisition to the foothills section, being located on Campbell road, between the Dan Campbell and Thompson places, and having a southern exposure affording the broadest valley vistas. The removal of the Jamesons from Pasadena is an indication of the growing attraction of the Glendale foothills.

The recent publicity given the squab industry through the News has borne fruit in the establishment of a large pigeon ranch with an acre of ground to grow to, on the Palmer Tract, by two young Germans, graduates from the well known York ranch on Dryden street. An extensive outfit of lofts is now under construction, and the full equipment will soon be in place. This location has been subdivided into acre and half acre lots, and occupies the extreme northwestern horn of the map of Glendale published in the Thursday issue of the News. Recent purchases have dotted the tract all over with new temporary homes, forerunners of good permanent home improvements, amid the fruit trees and vines.

Oliver C. Logan, the veteran grocer of Tropico, Glendale and Casa Verdugo experience, and now president of Espesero de Verdugo, at Central avenue and Stocker street, has had his weather eye open for an opportunity to acquire an interest in the Economic Ice Machine Co. of Los Angeles. Recently that occurred, and Mr. Logan took advantage of it, and now holds an important interest in that company. The local concern being in good running order enables him to devote the larger part of his time to the new business, a branch of which will be established in the Logan block on the San Fernando road in Tropico. Mr. Logan will devote special attention to the production of an ice machine adapted to ordinary butcher shops, groceries and similar places of business requiring cooling rooms, and there is an immense field for expansion, his company controlling the improved patents for the entire Pacific Coast and several States back of it. The smaller machines enter a field not heretofore covered, giving promise of a large business.

J. A. Corcoran and family moved from Orange and Broadway back to his own home, 1125 Melrose avenue, today.

W. P. Thompson of Grand View road is now convalescing from quite a serious illness.

A large party of school children enjoyed a final vacation jaunt, in connection with the playground activities of the Central and Pacific avenue schools, to Brookside Park, Pasadena, on Tuesday. Invitations were extended by Miss Rowe, playground instructress of the Central avenue school. The boys reported a grand time swimming and diving in the large, clear pool. A little Mexican boy in the party, who attends the Pacific avenue school, was refused admission to the swimming pool by the attendant in charge, on the grounds of nationality. But the innate fairness of the American boy character was exhibited by the sympathy the little Mexican received from his companions, who reasoned that if he was eligible to be taught side by side with them in the school, he was qualified for admission to all of the sports of the outing, and was the victim of un-American narrow-mindedness. They made up for his disappointment in other ways.

M. H. Becker and family of Melrose avenue are enjoying an outing at Hermosa beach.

Mr. Frank Owen, a resident of Casa Verdugo for a year past, has left to take up the duties of manager for a fine ranch, where he has been provided good wages, a home and two cows.

GLENDALE W. C. T. U.

HOLDS PROFITABLE MEETING AT THE HOME OF MRS. E. L. JORDAN

The Glendale City W. C. T. U. met in regular session Sept. 1, in the pretty home of Mrs. E. L. Jordon, 126 S. Maryland avenue. The president, Mrs. Ruby J. Smart, presided. Beautiful roses, artistically arranged in vases was used for decoration. Before the regular meeting a prayer and praise service was led by Mrs. Smart. There was a Scripture lesson with helpful comment, and a chain of fervent prayers offered for wisdom, strength and guidance in the work of the coming campaign for California Dry.

The business meeting was opened at 2:30 p. m. by singing campaign songs with much enthusiasm. The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and approved. Mrs. A. M. Brooks, chairman of the poster committee, reported the work of the poster campaign. Bill boards and posters will be put up in vacant lots, on lawns and in the windows of stores and homes. Needy cases in our midst of poverty and wretchedness caused by drink, and the relief of similar cases were reported to the Union.

The report of the committee, who visited the board of trustees, at their regular meeting, Aug. 24, and presented a protest of a violation of the liquor ordinance of Glendale was accepted.

The chairman reported a pleasant and courteous reception by the board and a favorable reply, that they would enforce every law that is upon the statute book of Glendale. Mrs. Flora Lemon and Mrs. Minnie Paul served with Mrs. Hattie E. Gaylord on the committee which visited the board of trustees and presented the protest against the violation of the liquor ordinance of the City of Glendale.

The program for the day was under the department of Scientific Temperance Instruction. Mrs. Fannie Brooks, superintendent, was in charge. The subject of the talk was "Efficiency of Scientific Temperance in the Schools." The teaching of scientific temperance in the public schools was made obligatory since the passing of the bill on May 17, 1886, by the National Congress. This bill was originated and carried on by the work of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, and watch was kept on the enforcement of the law. It has sometimes been said the schedule of studies is too full. In such cases this important subject should be given the right of way, as it forewarns and forearms the children. The rapid progress of Prohibition at the present time is largely credited to the training in school days of those who are now fast becoming voters.

The prize essay contests in the grades, and poster contests in the High School on Scientific Temperance have created keen competition and brought about the desired education concerning the effects of alcohol on the human system.

The next meeting will be held Sept. 15, at the home of Mrs. John Robert White, 101 S. Orange street. Program: "State Legislature." Dr. Jessie Russell will be the speaker, if her pressing duties in campaign work permit.

This pleasant and profitable meeting adjourned by singing Frances E. Willard's favorite song, "A Charge to Keep I Have." During the social hour the hostess served delicious fruitade and wafers.

NEW FURNISHINGS FOR GLENDALE COMMERCIAL SCHOOL

You would scarcely know the interior of the Glendale Commercial school, located over Munson's Drug store, with its new tables, desks, chairs and typewriters. Much new equipment has been added to keep pace with the growing attendance, and many enrollments have been promised for the fall classes.

BELIEVING IN ONE'S BUSINESS

No one ever made a success of any business if his whole heart and soul were not in it. On every side we see examples of men who find themselves at the end of a long experience as merely square pegs in round holes and yet so firmly wedged in that they cannot get out. This is a lamentable state of affairs. It is the more lamentable when it is seen that these individuals are loyal to the business in which they are placed and yet are suffering the agonies of their unnatural position from which they cannot escape.

It matters very little what work a man is doing if it is only congenial. He can sweep the streets or clean windows and laugh and be happy if only he feels that that is his vocation. Whereas many men are unhappy in professions and businesses that they have chosen for themselves rashly or which have been thrust on them when they did not want them. Perhaps the only situation which almost no one would refuse would be that of an elder son and heir to a great estate and a handsome income. Yet men have been found who have thrown those up and have gone into far countries and never been heard of again till their death when it has often been found that they had been quite happy and successful in other lines of life.

If a man should be convinced that what he is doing is the best thing he can do and the highest work he can accomplish, then other things being equal there is no reason why he should not be happy. His heart being in his work he must be able to get results and to be successful. "The hand of the diligent maketh rich," says Koheleth. But not even the preacher himself ever insisted that a man should toil at that which is not congenial to him, spend his money for that which is not bread and his labor for that which satisfieth not.

In all businesses the men who are born to the particular work they are doing are the men who succeed. The world is full of schools of all kinds that pretend to make merchants, and mariners, soldiers and sailors, salesmen and purchasers, without reference to previous education or natural liking. Of course one hears of the successes, never the failures. There are schools for teaching the violin irrespective of whether the pupil has an ear for music or not. Similar schools exist for persuading people without natural talent that they can learn to play the piano or that their voices can be cultured when their vocal chords have no development and their idea of music, harmony or discord, is absolutely nothing. Such schools may be congenial to a certain class of society exploiter but the exploited has another view of the process when he or she has been "finished."

It is useless trying to do things by rote for which one has no taste. Any parrot can learn to say "Pretty Polly" or to whistle a few bars of "My Country 'Tis of Thee;" but very few of them can keep up an original conversation. It is the same with humanity. No one will go out at night to hear a voiceless product of a correspondence school croak out "Sehnsucht" or "Die Lorelei" or extract Dvorak's "Humoresque" from the piano; but thousands have flocked to hear a "Patti" sing in exquisiteness "Annie Laurie" or "The Last Rose of Summer." There is everything in being wedded to a calling, a business, a profession for which one has a natural taste. There is pleasure as well as profit in such a life."

PIONEERS OF THE KLONDYKE

It will not be long before the pioneers of the Klondyke will all have passed away from this earth. Skookum Bill Mason, the big, strong Indian who first brought the existence of gold in the Far North to the knowledge of the white man, died recently at Carcross, Yukon territory. It is recorded that Bill always regretted that he had shown the gold to the whites. "Before the white man came to our country," he said, "we were strong and healthy. We never wanted for food. We had no disease. We lived a natural life. We worshipped one God. We had no ideas of a Jewish sabbath. We followed natural laws and we enforced the few laws we needed for man and we were happy.

"After the white man came we learned first to drink, then to make "hootch," intoxicating liquor from fermented flour. Then, having acquired the white man's love of liquor, we acquired the white man's diseases. These diseases devastated the tribes as far north as the Mackenzie river's mouth and where once were happy and prosperous villages there soon was nothing but a howling waste; a desolate expanse of dreary tundra in summer and a weary waste of snow in winter. They are all gone, the people I used to know. The snows of many winters cover them up. The foot of the white man is everywhere. You see it even in our flowers. The white man's plaintain and the white man's thistle have followed him and killed out many of our native plants that were useful and medicinal, just as his vile diseases have killed out the robust race that once laughed, and sang and hunted and had plenty of everything that was good and natural from the Thlinget villages of Juneau to the snow huts of Banks' land."

Poor Skookum Jim! At one time he had $100,000; but evil white men got around him. They took him to Seattle and there, living in a hazy atmosphere of drink in Butler's and other hotels he used to fling handfuls of gold out of his window to see the "white dogs" as he called them, scramble for the yellow metal in the street below.

Skookum Jim was a good example of the influence of gold on the native. It is well known to those who have lived in the Arctic and have learned to know the native that there are many of them who know of immensely rich deposits in the Far North but will not reveal them to the white man. "Of what use?" said one of these once. "White man he come; Eskimo he die. White man give Eskimo "hootch;" Eskimo give white man all his furs; all his winter's work."

It is certain that there will be no more revealing of gold deposits to the white man. The natives have learned their lesson in that respect. Their old ways have been too much invaded even now and it was only the Eskimo who knew how to live in the winters of the very Far North and yet to be well and to have plenty. Even now some of the teachings of white men have done much to injure the Eskimo and to render him lazy and indifferent. In Nome they wander in by trail and by boat as the winter ends and set up their encampments and sell their furs and ivory carvings at a good price and too often take home the white man's food which is never so good for them as their own old manner of provision. How long will it be before the Eskimos vanish away altogether?

BACK FROM MINES

Wallace Tupper, 101 E. Broadway, accompanied by his wife and family, made an interesting trip to Piermont, Nevada, where he is part owner of a silver mine. This mining property is giving indications that by development it will become one of the rich producing properties of that district. Already the owners, who are all Glendale people, have blocked out 5000 tons of ore, which will run $80 a ton. There is also every evidence that there is an enormous body of this ore undeveloped.

The company has also developed a very considerable amount of water power, which is used in running the compressors, hoists and other machinery. Forty men are employed constantly. The Tupper party motored to Piermont and the mint, taking three days to go and four days to return. Mr. Tupper has every confidence in the mine and believes it will turn out a great producer.

PICNIC OF KANSANS

Rice County, Kansas, is to hold its annual picnic at Long Beach Monday. There are about 100 Rice County Kansans in and around Los Angeles. Last year they met at Long Beach and held a picnic and organized themselves into a society. The president is J. D. Hinely of San Pedro and the secretary, G. F. Hauser, 5407 Virginia avenue, Los Angeles. Among those who will represent Glendale on Monday at the picnic will be Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Lyon and family, of 232 S. Louise street; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Lyon and family of 319 N. Maryland and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Davis and family, 1471 Salem street.

"GET-TOGETHER" SOCIAL

What proved to be an exceedingly successful church social was held Friday evening in the First Baptist church, when the trustees entertained the heads of the different societies of the church and their friends. The deacons were present, as were also the officers of the Sunday School. Mr. Sprowls, president of the trustees, presided.

Miss Evelyn Kent opened the meeting with a fine piano piece. The pastor, the Rev. Vernon Cowsert, offered a brief prayer. Mr. Moore and Mr. Cunningham sang solos. Then the whole company marched from the church proper to the basement to the music of a march played by Miss Kent.

In the basement the heads of the various organizations explained the work that had been done thus far and spoke of plans for the future. Speeches were made by Mr. Sprowls, president of the trustees; Mr. Fryer, senior deacon; Roy L. Kent, Sunday School superintendent; Mr. Van Why for the young people, Fred Sanford for the junior young people, Mrs. O. A. Lane for the Women's Missionary society and the Rev. Vernon Cowsert, for the church. Ice cream and wafers were served and a good time enjoyed.

NATURE LETTER

BY GLENDALE GIRL

The most interesting thing which I have seen since our last Bird and Flower meeting happened in our back yard. We looked out of the window early one morning and saw a big, fat shrike or butcher bird perched on the clothes line a few feet from the fence where a little chipmunk sat on his haunches as unconcerned about the shrike as could be, although the shrike was fully as large if not larger than he, and was scolding most terribly at him. He was the dearest little fellow you ever saw. So tiny, or so he seemed to me, as I had never seen one before and had imagined them to be much larger. He had stripes down his back and a funny little stick-up tail not nearly as bushy as the squirrels. Suddenly he turned and raced off down the fence, and the shrike went after him as quick as a flash. But all at once he turned and raced back after the shrike. Then they sat there and looked at each other, the chipmunk very coolly and the shrike agitatedly sawing his tail up and down. But chipmunk must have looked him out of countenance for he flew away all of a sudden. Chipmunk didn't seem to miss him, but sat sunning himself quite contentedly. By that time we girls were out doors and going softly towards him; we came quite close before he scampered away. Then we had a merry chase pursuing him up and down the fence. He finally fled to a neighbor's house and hid under the foundation, his nose just peeping slyly out. The last we saw of him he was flying up the trunk of a tree like a streak of lightning.

To see a chipmunk so near a house is not a common occurrence, I'm sure. The only way I can account for the shrike's interest in him was that perhaps he had mistaken him for a field mouse but found him bigger game than he had expected.

Edgar Brown caught a kangaroo rat up in the hills and brought it home so we got a chance to see it. It certainly was queer. It had little short front legs and very long back ones on which it hops (thus the name) and a very long tail with a brush at the end.

I saw a pretty squirrel on a picnic to Brookside park. It was at the entrance of his hole and just about to run in, but I stood perfectly still and so did he,—so still that if I had taken away my eyes off him for a moment I could not have found him again, so like the color of his surroundings was he. We both remained motionless for about three minutes when I moved, and he disappeared in his hole like a flash. I have seen a great many birds; blue jays, black-headed grosbeaks, and a song sparrow which is the first one I have seen here though they seem to be so common in other parts of the State.—DOROTHY SHERMAN, aged 14, Bird and Flower Club.

den out getting back for a fresh load in 50 seconds for the round trip.

Should a stump or log be encountered it proceeds much as pictures show us is the method employed by elephants which are trained to move timber with their tusks, searching out the best point to get under the obstruction with its projecting runners it will pull, push and lift until chains may be run under and the obstacle swung out of the channel.

But the portable bin would soon be full so along comes a busy, puffing, diminutive edition of the old style locomotive with a string of cars holding four yards each and two are loaded at the same time, and when all are full, away they go to the other terminus and here we will follow the material in one car: A cable is attached, up an incline goes the car to where two projecting wheels on the rear axle go up a track which elevates the rear of the car and presto, the load is on its way through a huge crusher which reduces the boulders to a size the smaller crushers can handle; then up a long endless belt to the top of a structure filled with screens, crushers and wheels whence it issues as fine sand, coarse sand, different sizes of screenings and crushed rock, each in its own appointed place.

A string of railroad cars alongside or a 5-ton truck underneath may have on board the manufactured road material fifteen minutes after the boulders are first disturbed and dislodged from the bed of the arroyo. As consumption can not keep up with production another ingenious feature is introduced, a long structure resembling the interior of a railroad tunnel is constructed and the surplus material deposited over it in form of a huge hill.

The truck or wagon enters the tunnel, stops at the right place according to what kind of material is wanted and in a few moments emerges on the other side of the hill with its load. One man operates the steam shovel, another the railroad train and no one is in sight at the elevator though doubtless several are there; the writer contrasted this scene with one of a few years ago near the same place. A spur track from the Salt Lake Railroad ran down into the arroyo and on this might be seen a long string of flat cars and an army of laborers, each throwing his shovel full of material aboard. If one did not go that way too often it might be noted that the excavation was a trifle larger when seen again but the process was slow and expensive.

To protect the sides of the excavated channel eighteen inches of boulders are embedded in concrete on a slope of 45 degrees for some two thirds of the vertical distance, then comes a retaining wall of concrete to the top, the whole being 25 feet 2 inches in height from the bottom of channel.

In places where erosion can deepen a channel, concrete is very liable to be undermined and destroyed but where the opposite conditions obtain as they do in the arroyo at this point the protection will probably be effective and permanent.

It is of interest to Glendale citizens to note that the city of Los Angeles has obtained jurisdiction and is doing the actual work of excavating and construction in this important enterprise. It is of interest to Glendale because, while of lesser magnitude than the Arroyo Seco, our own Verdugo Wash exhibits the same traits and is a very aggressive and alarming feature of a season of excessive rainfall. It is even more serious than its neighbor because of the fact that as settlement of the Crescenta Canada valley develops increased supplies of sand, gravel and debris will be washed into its channel to be deposited along its course through Glendale as the grade flattens out.

I believe it is impossible from an engineering standpoint to so confine the flood water of Verdugo Wash as to cause it to carry all its debris to the Los Angeles river. If it does not do this it must build up its bed a little more at each recurring storm and must ultimately repeat its past history of selecting new paths to the river after leaving the canyon.

If this is allowed to happen now that the valley is thickly populated it would be a blunder bordering on the criminal (suicide is rated as a crime) and we could not say "We never knew it could happen."

Something should be done at once by all the valley residents provided the flood protection bonds fail to carry, as now seems probable, and why would not the Arroyo Seco plan of acquiring jurisdiction over an official, permanent channel be a wise solution? The material dredged from such channel to maintain its depth might then be made an asset and contribute toward the expense of upkeep of the side protection, the keeping of tree growth out of the channel, etc.

It is well to consider these questions now; if we do not and also follow up our consideration with action there will not be a lack of those when trouble comes in the future, to loudly proclaim our shortsightedness and inefficiency.

Will they not in part be justified?

—G. B. WOODBERRY.

To the true philosopher there is, indeed, no waste in the scheme of nature; all disappointments can be transformed into drawing accounts on the bank of experience.

Long before laws and ordinances were passed in regard to sanitary conditions of dairies and the handling of milk, MacMullin's had a sanitary dairy in every sense of the word, and all sanitary requirements were courted.

BURBANK

Burbank Trustees Session

The board of trustees of the city of Burbank held their regular weekly session at the city hall, Wednesday afternoon, trustees Blanchard, Forbes, Linn and Hogle being present. Trustee Pollock was absent.

Bedding supplies for the new jail quarters in the new city hall building were ordered by the board and City Marshal O. S. Greenwood was given orders to purchase the same.

Ordinance No. 97 changing the hour of meeting was adopted by the council by unanimous vote of those present. The weekly council meeting under the new ordinance will be called at 7:30 o'clock, Tuesday night.

The city hall contractor, P. A. Farley, communicated with the board to the effect that any part of the new building might be used by the city before acceptance by the board of trustees. C .C. Wright appeared before the board and requested an extension of a city water main to his property near Fourth and Providencia streets. The matter was referred to City Engineer F. Curt Miller.

Engineer Miller addressed the board regarding the purchase of material for replacing the old water mains on Eleventh street in order to get the new reservoir in working order. Under present conditions, the pressure of the water, if turned on, is more than the old mains can withstand. The cost of repairing leaks, according to Miller, would more than repay the installation of the new mains. A motion was then carried ordering the city clerk to advertise for bids for the necessary supplies.

It was ordered by the board that the office in the city hall be closed Saturday afternoons during the month of September.

The following bills were ordered paid:

S. G. Chamberlain	$ 6.00

ELECTRIC LIGHT FUND

General Electric Co.	$ 27.87

WATER FUND

H. W. Osborn	$ 2.00

Rev. H. A. Rudin and wife returned from a month's vacation spent at Catalina. Rev. Rudin is pastor of the Presbyterian church of Burbank.

Light Vote Cast

Burbank cast a very light vote at Tuesday's election. Only 25 per cent of the registration went to the polls. Very little effort was made by the various candidates to get votes in Burbank precincts.

In several of the precincts some parties did not poll a single vote. The supervisoral fight was divided between Dodge, Packer and Wilson.

Burbank Is Winner

Burbank's baseball team was quite successful in its efforts last Saturday afternoon in defeating the General Petroleum nine by a score of 11 to 2. From the first inning to the final frame, the locals had everything their own way. Schatzlein and Hoover, the new Burbank battery, deserve credit for the tight game. One hit, a sacrifice and six walks in the second inning gave Burbank its 7-run lead. Bowmer was the alleged pitcher for the Petrolites while Whitehoues did the backstopping.

The Burbank team is suffering from raids by the Coast league. Bill Samis, outfielder, was signed last week by the 'Frisco club while Julius Davenport, the Burbank High school kid, is in Vernon Tiger uniform. It is understood that he will have a regular berth with the Tigers.

Slausson Playground team will meet Burbank this Saturday in the first league game of the season. The team is getting good support from the fans.

A dance will be given at the I. O. O. F. hall Saturday night by the younger set of the city.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Tetley and son Frank were mid-week guests at the Hotel Marion.

Services will be held in the I. O. O. F. hall by the Episcopalians every other Sunday beginning Sunday afternoon, Sept. 2, at 3 o'clock.

Fire Engine in Use

For the first time since Burbank purchased its new auto fire engine it was used Tuesday to extinguish a blaze at the Dundee Supply company's engine house at Dundee. The new truck made a record run to the scene of conflagration, three miles up the San Fernando boulevard.

BAPTIST YOUNG PEOPLE HOLD PROGRESSIVE PARTY

A large number of the young people of the B. Y. P. U. of the First Baptist church participated in a "progressive" party, Thursday evening, Aug. 31.

The party had its beginning when the young people gathered at the home of Mrs. Marion Stanton, 1015 Lomita, where a delightful time was had playing games, etc. Homemade pop corn balls were served, and then the party made "progress" by hying themselves to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Sanford, 117 N. Maryland, where merriment reigned for another hour or so. Delicious sandwiches and chocolate were served here.

The party then made its next move, when the young folks "progressed" to the home of Mr. and Mrs. V. Price Brown, 147 So. Louise St. Here more enjoyable games were played and a watermelon "feed" ended one of the most delightful evenings the young people have spent in a long time.

SALT LAKE ROUTE

THE WAY TO THE EAST

Any time you have occasion to plan a trip to any point East that can be reached via Salt Lake City, and that means almost anywhere in the United States and Canada, just bear in mind the excellent service of the Salt Lake Route, with its Los Angeles Limited and Pacific Limited trains; less than three days to Chicago, with through sleepers and dining cars. Free chair cars in Pacific Limited. The Overland Express is a good one, too, but not so fast; has through sleepers, chair cars and coaches to Salt Lake, connecting for Eastern points.

Ask any ticket agent of the

and get full information about trains, fares, etc.

FOR THE HOUSEHOLD

TO REMOVE FRUIT STAINS FROM LINENS

Put some powdered sulphur on a plate, pour on it a few drops of alcohol, then put the larger end of a funnel over the plate. Set the alcohol afire and, as the smoke comes through the smaller end of the funnel, hold the stain over the smoke for a few minutes. Wash in cold water andhang in the sun.

A FIRELESS COOKER DINNER

A Saturday night dinner that can be prepared in the morning, leaving the half holiday in the afternoon free from thoughts of cooking, is as follows: Pot roast with potatoes and vegetables, lettuce salad, bread and butter and peach cobbler.

The pot roast should be seared and browned nicely on all sides, and put into the cooking vessel of the fireless, surrounded by potatoes, carrots, onions, parsnips, turnips, and so on—all into inch cubes and seasoned with salt, pepper, a bit of bay leaf and a few cloves, and water added. If the radiators of the cooker are used a cup or pint of water is sufficient; if not, the meat should be nearly covered with water, brought to a boil, and transferred, after twenty minutes boiling, to the cooker. The roast should be ready to serve within three to six hours after it is put in, according to the heat used. With the radiators, less time should be allowed and less water put on the meat.

In the morning, make a pastry shell for the cobbler, and pare and slice the peaches and cover them with sugar. Put the roast in the cooker and wash the lettuce. About ten minutes before dinner, whip the cream and make the cobbler, make the French salad dressing, open the cooker and serve the dinner. An iced drink may be added.
